L’Oreal Employees Lend Helping Hand at Roselle Public Library for Annual Volunteer Day

ROSELLE, NJ - June 03, 2022 – Some make-up with that makeover?

The Roselle Public Library had some special help from employees of the cosmetic giant L’Oreal during the company’s Annual Volunteer Day on June 2 as the library prepares for the upcoming state-of-the-art expansion.

Forty volunteers, including 25 interns on their first day of work, assembled at the Roselle Public Library on West Fourth Avenue to carefully sort, pack and transport books and other materials ahead of the renovation.

“This is a wonderful example of a private-public partnership as well as inter-community cooperation as we borrowed carts from the Cranford Public Library,” said Library Director Jeanne Marie Ryan. “Thank you to L’Oreal, which has volunteered with the library over a number of years. We appreciate their help a little more this year as we work to transition to building our new 21st-century library.”

L’Oreal employees ventured from locations in Clark and New York City to volunteer. Volunteer Day is an extension of L’Oréal’s Annual Global Citizen Day initiative, which is the company’s ongoing effort to support communities worldwide.

The Roselle Public Library will be going through a transition period over the next four to six weeks before construction is slated to begin over the summer.

The $11 million renovation and expansion will transform the current library into a hub for the community with two large program rooms, retractable seating and a warming kitchen, all designed to be used by community groups after regular library hours. Plans also include a generator for the first-floor wing in case of emergency situations.

“We greatly appreciate the L’Oreal team for dedicating their time to help our community as we work to give Roselle the library it deserves,” said Mayor Donald Shaw.
